

Level 4 - Embedding Energy Culture Change

We know that training can be an extremely effective way of engaging personnel to deliver real energy and cost savings within an organisation. Where savings are seen most keenly, however, is when the culture, structure and processes of an organisation also change to ensure that the engagement, awareness and commitment achieved through training is enabled and maintained.

Most organisations do not have the skills, knowledge and internal resources required to implement the measures required to achieve this level of change, and that is where JRP can help. Our highly experienced and qualified energy experts can work within your organisation to deliver your requirements through our Level 4 – Embedding Energy Culture Change programme.

Level 4

- A bespoke programme where JRP in conjunction with the client will identify needs and objectives, develop a structured approach to meeting the objectives and then agree an implementation programme which JRP will deliver and manage.
- There is no set time-frame for this programme as it will depend entirely on individual requirements and resources.
- £POA

Typically, this programme could include, but is not limited to:

- Developing an Energy Policy.
- Engaging senior managers to ensure top-level buy-in.
- review and modification of management systems and procedures around energy.y
- Identification of training needs.
- Creating an energy roles structure.
- Delivery of a tailored energy training programme.
- Support in recruitment of personnel with energy specific roles.
- Developing an Energy Action Plan.
- Tracking the implementation of projects.
- Mentoring staff with energy roles to deliver the projects.
- Creating and delivering an energy communications programme.
